The Twelve Doctors of Christmas

one's partridge in a pear tree

two's turtle doves

three's french hens

four's calling birds

five's gold rings

six's geese-a-laying

seven's swans-a-swimming

eight's merry milking

nine's lonely dancing

ten's (time) lords-a-leaping

eleven's parting piping

twelve's debut drumming

All I want for Christmas!!

Sonic Screwdriver Tooth Brush

My Little Pony mugs!

Rock, Paper, lizard. Scissors, Spock anyone?

Just in case the Doctor needs a 'cup of tea', you need a TARDIS Tea Infuser

Robb Stark Sword ""Game of Thrones"

Now you can enter the TARDIS anytime you want with this door decal.

A 'Different' Christmas Poem Nightmare Before Christmas

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a peripheral was stirring, not even a mouse;
The modem was hung by the keyboard with care
In hopes that a download soon would be there.

The pirates were nestled all snug in their beds
While visions of unprotects danced in their heads.

And the wife in her kerchief, and I in my cap
Had just settled down for a long winter's nap

When up on the hard drive there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from the bed to see what was the matter.

Away to the monitor I flew like a flash,
Sat down at the keyboard, gave the spacebar a mash.

The sight on the screen, a flicker with snow
Gave the luster of power surge to the menu
below.
When, what to my wandering eyes should appear,
But an autoexec.bat that seemed rather queer.

With a little print driver so lively and quick,
I knew in a moment I had seen a new trick.
More rapid than eagles my cursor it came;
My voice box whistled, and shouted, and called me by name.

"Now format, now rename, copy, and enter!
On num lock, on caps lock, on scroll lock, and printer.
To the top of the page, to the top of the doc,
Now tab it and bold it and merge it and block."

As utilities that build up the CPU speed
Clash with just the programs I need,
So up to the screen top the curser it flew,
With a RAM full of memory and an extension
board too.

And then, in a twinkling I heard on the speaker,
The grinding of the hard drive growing much weaker

Website www.genews-ezine.com

As I tried to reboot and turn it around,
The attributes changed from blue into brown.

I hit the control, the alt, and delete.
The message it gave me, I cannot repeat.
It asked me to Ignore, Retry, or Abort.
It told me the parallel had become the comm
port.

Its lights how they twinkled; its pixels how merry.
Its prompts were all scrambled, like a bowl
full of cherries.
It sounded just like it wanted to blow;
The screen was suddenly white as the snow.

It scrolled the directory before my eyes
With programs I didn't even recognize.
It wouldn't see D; it wouldn't see E.
I couldn't get out of B into C.

Norton's tried to read it;
It finally found the FAT;
But alas!, the disk was faulty,
And couldn't reformat.

Away flew the DBase;
Away flew the Doses;
Away flew the WordStar;
Right out with the Windows.

The spreadsheets were spreading;
The footers were heading;
What once had been memory,
Was close to forgetting.

When the grinding was over,
And the smoke had all cleared,
I looked at the unit,
And it was just as I feared.

The 335 meg wonder had crashed in the night.

I'll never be able to block out that sight!
So tell everyone to avoid my plight;
Back up! Back up! Merry Christmas! Good
Night!

THE EVOLUTION OF THE

GEEK

When one hears the word geek, images are conjured of pocket protectors and right-angled made out of old comic books. That old notion of geek-dom has since evolved into a new, tech-savvy, and dare we say cool geek.

GECKEN

The term "geek" finds its origins in the 1500s, when it meant someone who was considered a fool. It is also thought to have come from the word, "gecken", used in 18th century Austria-Hungary to refer to circus performers whose acts included biting the head off of a live chicken.

COMPUTER GEEK

INTERNET GEEK

Internet geeks became widely popular during the 90s dot-com boom. This group includes programmers, web site builders and LISP speakers.

GEEKUS PRIME

It was not until the 1950s that the term "geek" became associated with those who were passionate or obsessed with technology, or specific sub-cultures.

GLEE GEEK

GEEK CHIC VARIANTS

A NEW DEFINITION

In the past, being described as a geek was considered an insult, for it reflected a certain manner of social skills or status. Today, it is used to describe someone impressioned or obsessed by a particular area or interest. This reclamation of "geek" has even gone so far as to filter into commerce, with the ever-popular "Geek Squad" from Best Buy.

GEEK CHIC

At the beginning of the 21st century, a new trend embraced the stereotypical qualities of a geek. This look became especially popular amongst hipsters, who delighted in the irony of a hip-geek aesthetic.
